

Free Notification Service

The Free Notification Service allows Australia Post to notify other organisations of your new mailing address on your behalf. We only notify those organisations that already know your name and old mailing address. This free service is only available to applicants of our Mail Redirection Service.

How this service works:

- Australia Post can supply your new address details to organisations that already have your name and previous address details.
 - When organisations approach us to update their database, your details will only be passed on if you are one of their customers.
 - These organisations may include; utilities, charities, direct marketing, consumer goods, financial, professional and other services. For more information, see clause 2.7 and 11 of the Terms and Conditions on your Application to Redirect Mail.
